

The Future of the South Sudan

First and foremost, I am excited to proclaim the rights and freedoms of my and every Southern Sudanese citizen to exercise the liberty of our New Country. I am calling everyone's attention to take pleasure and celebrate the liberation of our land from the possessive Northern Government. I am honoring our heroes, men and women, deceased friends, widows, orphans, disabled and everybody who has been claimed by this war to bring freedom to our country. I am mindful of all the good deeds you deployed to release our beloved country from overprotective government.

I rejoice that the future of the country is in our hands. We need unity within the people and the government. Disunity among tribes must be eradicated. Everybody needs to treat one another as a partner, friend, and convey a sense of oneness. Our government needs to make sure that people are secure and resources are shared equally among the citizens. The leaders within the government must take caution and never take advantage of using resources for their own satisfactions. Everybody from the South Sudan believes that our country is productive and resourceful enough to feed us.

I am assuring those leaders who fight for their own fulfillments are selfish and greedy. Those who go against and fight because they lost authority are brainless. We need leaders who are inspirational and courageous to serve the entire country with equal hearts. Our country needs leaders who can understand the needs and pains of the citizens. Those who cannot put the needs of his/her cousins or his/her own tribe first.

In the 1970s thru 1980s leaders went to war because they believed that we cannot be careless in our own country. They were very open-minded and loved to discuss real issues that would help to stabilize the country. I challenge the current government to be attentive and make sure our modern country is a place where people seek equal opportunity and freedom of movement. Our future can be realized receivable when we share equal education, jobs, resources, safety, medical attention and lack of exploitation or mistreatments.

Education!

Now there are many universities in South Sudan. Not everybody who is willing to further his/her education is accepted because the admission evaluations are based on tribal categories. If you assess the admission process you would believe the South Sudan is not liberated. There are some tribes who are taking advantages of this great victory over other tribes. This is totally against the future of our country. Education is a successful outlet and it teaches people to have broad minds and perceive united values. The prospect of our country needs dazzling and well trained individuals who are idealistic and understood the phenomenon about humanity.

Medical Attention!

When you go to the hospital and you are not from a certain tribe your medical attention is less considerate. People are dramatizing ethical racism against other tribes. We shouldn't have this influence interfere with the unity among the tribes. It is important to pay attention and give considerate medical attention to treat patients. By doing this you are a healer and you have saved someone's life. We shouldn't be manipulated by unspeakable tribal attitudes.

Job Opportunities!

The issue of job opportunities is a big philosophical issue in the cities. People believe that an individual from another tribe cannot seek an employment opportunity in another tribe town. This idea is an illiteracy of bad perception. The job should be given to those who can perform well and also be productive to meet the needs of the organization. Jobs should be offered to those who can meet the standards requirement and achieve what is needed by the company. Employment should not be granted based on tribes. We need to educate and make the community aware of these issues arising every day. Job vacancies should be advertised to make sure the company employs the right applicant who meets the minimum requirements. Offering a job to a cousin is not a right thing to do.

Safety of Citizens!

The future of our country is not safe. Tribe attacks another tribe with no reason. A team join together to loot other people properties for no cause. The government itself is a major contributor of these problems. One leader is against another leader. Power sharing within the South Sudan government is becoming a source of problems. Everybody wants to be the head. No one claims less. It is a mental illness. No one claims to know less than the other person. There is no future of our country if people consider these ideological incompatible beliefs.

Resources!

The future of our country is not bright if people fight over possessions. We all are Southern Sudanese. We should have empathy of caring and heart of loving one another. The division of lands will not save us any good actions. Your tribe superiority cannot make you raid other tribe's belongings. The government of the South Sudan needs to know when our resources are available. We have to take possession of our land. We need to make sure we have knowledge of where our resources are based. In doing so, we would be able to calculate and have understanding of what we have or do not have in our country.

I will close this observation by making sure that these issues are in our constant attention. I am glad our country is developing and many envoys are coming underway. I would love my fellow countrymen to deserve this opportunity by prioritizing this critical time to love one another and always remain united. We do not have the Northern Government making decisions on our behalf so we should extensively classify ourselves as free people in our own land. I am very happy to share with you my thoughts.
